Self-motivated Player

Summary

I'm passionate about technology, with a focus on backend development, infrastructure, cloud, and distributed systems.

I contribute to open source projects like Grafana and Yorkie, and I have experience mentoring in open source communities.

I believe in giving back by sharing knowledge in various ways—through mentoring, technical seminars, and community building.

For over a year and a half, I've been consistently mentoring others in backend and open source areas.

I also founded a developer club that later became an official academic club at my university.
